AVI LASAROW SHORTLISTED FOR 'ENTREPRENEUR OF THE YEAR'

Avi Lasarow, managing director of Trimega Laboratories, has been shortlisted for 'Entrepreneur of the Year' in this year's National Business Awards (NBA).

Open to organisations of all sizes from all sectors across the UK, The NBA is the UK's most prestigious business recognition platform with its particular emphasis on success, innovation and ethical business. This is the second year running that Trimega Laboratories has been acknowledged by the NBA, having come runner-up in the 2008 Tenon Entrepreneurial Spirit Award.

All finalists for Entrepreneur of the Year 2009, which also include Dale Vince of Ecotricity, Dr Lalvani of Vitabiotics and Jeff Gunn of Bright Ideas Global, will make their presentations in person before an independent, expert judging panel. The winner will be unveiled at a glittering gala award ceremony on 10th November at the Grosvenor House hotel in London.

Avi Lasarow commented: "Entrepreneurship is about having a vision and total belief that you can make it come alive. I knew, having worked in the child protection area, that hair alcohol testing would become a natural evolution from blood alcohol testing. It took time to find the methods but, supported by a dedicated team of scientists and colleagues, Trimega Laboratories has now made this possible. On behalf of the company, I am honoured to be included on the shortlist and pleased that such a colossal effort has been recognised."

Martin Lyne, Director for Small and Medium Enterprise for Orange (NBA sponsor), added: "To reach the final stage of the UK's most important business recognition programme is an enormous achievement. It is companies like these, who are bucking the economic trend and delivering excellent results that will benefit most when the upturn finally comes. It will be fascinating to see which companies walk away with the awards in November".
